To Whom it May Concern,

My experience over the past few months with the Activessel system has been nothing but positive. I am currently treating patients with a variety of diagnosis; ranging from sciatica and neuropathies/radiculopathies to soft tissue injuries (spasms, sprains, strains, and even wounds).

The Activessel system has so many different applications as opposed to the other medical devices found in out/inpatient facilities. Due to this wide ability to treat various diagnosis/injuries; the cost of the machine isn't too great when compared to other machines that can only treat one or two diagnosis/injuries; so the machine is extremely cost effective.

As a Doctor of Physical Therapy, I can bill out for services rendered to insurance and recoup approx. $100, dependent on insurance and treatment times which is above the average reimbursement for similar services rendered. Most importantly, continuous care and patient retention is the most important in my business; with a machine like this my retention as been much improved.

I am looking forward to continuing my treatments with the Activessel system because I know the system works. I also am looking forward to getting another system for my second clinic. If you have any further questions, I would be more than happy to entertain and conference call.
